

Queen conchs are also called pink conchs because their inner shells are pale pink in color. Conchs live only in tropical waters. They are scavengers, finding dead crabs and clams with a keen sense of sight and smell. Humans collect conchs for their shells and meat.